

First rail shipment

Myron Levine, president of Autolog Corp., pops a champagne cork to celebrate the arrival of the company's first rail shipment of private cars from the Northeast to South Florida. Autolog previously delivered cars on that route by truck. The trip from Washington to Miami takes two days and uses the lines of three railroads — the RF&P, Seaboard, and Florida East Coast; one-way fare is $285. The company expects that a great deal of its business will come from vacationers and from Florida's large population of winter residents.
